

COOKIE POLICY

What is a cookie?

Cookie is a little text-file memorized by the computer when a user visits a web site. The text memorizes information that the site is able to read when it is consulted in a second time. Some of these cookies are essential for the correct operation of the site; others are useful for the visitor because they are able to memorize in a safe way, for instance, the user name or language settings. The advantage of having cookies installed in your own pc is that you don't need to fill in all the information he would fill in every time he wants to access a previously visited site.

Why does Roerino s.a.s. use cookies?

Roerino s.a.s. uses cookies in order to furnish his users with a surfing experience moulded around their tastes and preferences. Cookies are used also for the optimization of the web site's performances: they render easier the fast research of specific contents within the site. In order to protect your own personal data against possible losses and any form of illicit treatment Roerino s.a.s. has taken appropriate technical and organizational measures.
